Excerpt: OUR EMINENT VISITORS PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE. Welcome to them each and all! They do good -- the deepest, widest, most needed good -- though quite certainly not in the ways attempted -- which have, at times, something irresistibly comic. What can be more farcical, for instance, than the sight of a worthy gentleman coming three or four thousand miles through wet and wind to speak complacently and at great length on matters of which he both entirely mistakes or knows nothing -- before crowds of auditors equally complacent, and equally at fault? Yet welcome and thanks, we say, to those visitors we have, and have had, from abroad among us -- and may the procession continue ! We have had Dickens and Thackeray, Froude, Herbert Spencer, Oscar Wilde, Lord Coleridge -- soldiers, savants, poets -- and now Matthew Arnold and Irving the actor. Some have come to make money -- some for a good time -- some to help us along and give us advice -- and some undoubtedly to investigate, bona fide, this great problem, democratic America, looming upon the world with such cumulative power through a hundred years, now with the evident intention (since the Secession War) to stay, and take a leading hand, for many a century to come, in civilizations and humanity's eternal game.

But alas! that very investigation -- the method of that investigation -- is where the deficit most surely and helplessly comes in....
