

The Book of Niagara Falls (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Book of Niagara Falls
The writer of the following pages, having been a resident at the Falls a number of years, and familiar with the whole scenery at all seasons of the year, as well as with all the interesting localities in the vicinity, and having omitted no means of obtaining correct information in regard to the various facts stated, feels free to offer this manual as a correct and sufficient guide to visitors, in which they will find, within a small compass, an ample fund of information respecting the Falls and vicinity. Having no particular or private interests to serve, he has aimed to give an impartial description of the different objects of interest on both sides of the river, and to do justice to all persons concerned.
